Louise Ing

Louise K.Y. Ing is a partner in Dentons, the largest law firm in the world. She has been recognized by Best Lawyers in America for her litigation work. Her community leadership has included service on the boards of local businesses, professional organizations and non-profits.

Candidates

Keith Amemiya

Keith Amemiya is a community and business leader who believes in investing in the future and potential of young people, and making a real difference in their lives. He earned his law degree at UH Manoa. He is currently the Executive Director of the Central Pacific Bank Foundation and previously led the Hawaii High School Athletic Association.

Ikaika Anderson

Ikaika Anderson is a single dad to his four children and is working hard to raise his family in Hawaii. His 'ohana lives in a multi-generational household with his grandparents. During his 22-years of working in the Hawai'i State Legislature and the Honolulu City Council, he built a reputation as a consensus-building public servant who listens to the people he represents and meets tough issues head-on.

Sylvia Luke

Sylvia Jung (Chang) Luke is a veteran state lawmaker who is ready to take on new challenges as the lieutenant governor and to see many of the reforms she initiated come to life. She has been a practicing attorney in Honolulu and for the last decade, she has been chairperson for the House Committee on Finance. She built a reputation of bringing transparency and accountability to the state budget.

Sherry Menor-McNamara

Sherry Menor-McNamara is the President and CEO of the Chamber of Commerce Hawaii and is the youngest and first female to lead the organization of over 2000 local businesses representing over 200,000 employees. She received her law degree and MBA from UH Manoa. She looks to bring new perspectives, innovative ideas, and common-sense solutions to the table while partnering with the next governor to lower the costs of living and doing business in Hawaii.
